

Bio:

Lorraine Williams, a third year principal at Millcreek Elementary in Fayette County Public Schools, Lexington, KY was born and raised in New York City. With over 25 years of experience in education, Williams worked as a teacher, instructional leader, and administrator in Texas before coming to Kentucky in 1996. She has experience at all elementary grade levels, in technology, in targeted programs for children from low-income families, children with disabilities, children learning English as a second language, and children in gifted and talented classes. Williams earned a bachelor's degree in elementary education from New York University and obtained her master's degree in education with a concentration in early childhood and English as a Second Language from the University of St. Thomas in Houston, TX. Williams has served as a KDE Highly Skilled Educator and holds National Board Certification, English as a Second Language endorsement, and a Rank One in supervision. For the past two years, Williams has served as one of two administrators appointed to the Education Professional Standards Board by former Governor Ernie Fletcher.
